

Education Verification

Rest assured that your applicants truly have the diplomas and qualifications they mention in their resumes.

Addressing The Issue Of Falsifying Credentials:

Inconsistencies were found in 9.76% of the diplomas we verified in 2018. Unfortunate but true, these statistics are now the norm. Most recruiters recognize that around 10% of applicants falsify credentials on their resumes, whether by claiming to have finished an academic program, mentioning a degree acquired from a diploma mill, or merely claiming to have graduated from a university they never attended.

Education verification addresses this issue by validating the school that granted the applicant's diploma, the date it was conferred, the authenticity of the applicant's diploma, and the existence of diploma mills. Our dedicated team of professionals completes all verifications quickly and accurately.

In other words, you can quickly determine whether an applicant has developed the necessary job-related skills.
